Appendix 2 Post-conference travel

Emei mountain

Emei Mountain lies seven kilometers southwest of Emeishan City and is one of the four mountain ranges in China that Buddhists consider sacred. It was included in the UNESCO world heritage list in 1996. The mountain stretches more than 200 kilometers from south to north. Its main peak, Wanfo Top, is 3,099 meters above sea level. Since ancient times Emei Mountain has been described as "Beauty Under Heaven". Temples were built as early as the Eastern Han Dynasty (25—220) and Buddhism was introduced to the mountain during the Jin Dynasty. In the Ming and Qing dynasties there were more than 150 temples.

The travel will last for one day. There will be professional travel agent offering the service and there will be tourist guide, speaking Japanese and Chinese. The fee for travel is about 600 RMB(depending on the number of people). The delegates who want to participate in the travel will directly contact with the travel agency at the reception of the conference.
